SITE SELECTION
STUDY for the
DEPARTMENT of NATIONAL DEFENCE
HEADQUARTERS

Serving as a sub-consultant on a Public Works Canada contract and reporting directly to the Department of National Defence (DND), PPAL was asked to identify prospective sites within the National Capital Region for the development of a new DND headquarters. The assignment involved the application of pre-determined location criteria leading to the identification of sites capable of accommodating over 2000 employees. The work required a full appreciation of the vacant developable land inventory on both the Quebec and Ontario sides of the region. In the end, a confidential report was prepared and presented to DND identifying prospective sites for consideration.
